42. “The WPA: Save the NEA” at Washburn Gallery

As part of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's New Deal, the Works Progress Administration (WPA) provided work for more than 5,000 artists through the Federal Art Project. In the first exhibition at Washburn Gallery's new Chelsea location, see work from artists who participated in the program, including Philip Guston, Stuart Davis, and Jackson Pollock. The showstopper will be Ilya Bolotowsky's 1980 recreation of his 17-foot-long 1936 Mural for the Williamsburg Housing Project.

177 Tenth Avenue, September 14–October 28, 2017; opening reception, 6 p.m.–8 p.m.
